

Christopher Norris: Owner, Strategist Revox Social, LLC

My name is Chris Norris and I started Revox Social because I wanted to show people that there is positive power in using social media effectively. The word Revox is Latin for “another voice” and I believe that social media should be an accurate and authentic representation of your business or brand’s voice. That is why at Revox, we do social media marketing for you, or we can teach you how to do it. We help you expand your reach online and successfully connect with customers. In order to do that, you need someone who cares about your social media following as much as you do—a partner you can trust. That’s us!

Through my business, I’ve met so many wonderful people and developed lasting relationships that span well beyond the 9 to 5 grind. I’m still a fairly new business owner, having left a corporate job in May 2019 to pursue my passions and dreams, while also getting to spend more time with my son.

I also enjoy video production, playing baseball and eating lots of chipotle. My social media platform of choice is Instagram and my guilty pleasure is bingeing episodes of Saved by the Bell.