

Craig Mandeville, a seasoned innovator and entrepreneur, is the Founder and CEO of Forcura. Craig founded the company in 2012 after witnessing first-hand how much of an impact digital management of medical records and secure communication could have on improving patient care. Craig's vision is to lead the change in making healthcare more continuous through true interoperability, using technology to facilitate seamless care transitions and to empower better care coordination. Craig partnered with Silicon Valley-based investor Accel-KKR to scale Forcura more rapidly, enter more health sectors and to fully realize this vision.

Prior to Forcura, Craig was a sales leader for Intuit's enterprise software division, MRI Software, and co-founder and VP of sales for Waste Reduction Consultants, Inc., acquired by Cass Information Systems (NASDAQ: CASS). He graduated with a Bachelor of Science in Communication and Business from The University of Texas at Austin. Craig currently serves on the Board for the southeastern chapter of YPO. He is actively involved in several organizations committed to elevating the growing technology sector of Jacksonville and supports philanthropies including the STEM2 Hub and UpSkill Institute. He lives in Ponte Vedra Beach with his wife and three daughters.
